Good news for Creative Salmon and their customers.

Tofino, BC January 13, 2008 – Creative Salmon received laboratory results yesterday from fish collected at its Eagle Bay farm by a Fisheries Officer from the Ministry of Agriculture and Lands on January 8th 2008. These fish were analyzed at an independent laboratory in Vancouver BC for the presence Malachite Green and Leucomalachite Green.

As anticipated all the results came back negative. This confirms our previous test results from Eagle Bay and the fact that Creative Salmon does not use Malachite Green. Harvesting at the Eagle Bay farm is expected to resume as early as this week.

There is still no explanation for the positive result sampled by the FDA or how the sample became contaminated. However we have learned, that a sample of farmed Atlantic salmon from Marine Harvest was collected at the US boarder by the FDA on the same day as the Creative Salmon sample. The Atlantic salmon sample also tested positive for Malachite Green.

Working with the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA), Creative Salmon has launched a voluntary recall of some of the fish harvested from the Eagle Bay farm. The recall is limited to salmon sold in Canada that were harvested from one cage at the farm. The final harvest of fish from this cage occurred on December 17th 2007 and the salmon were sold into the fresh market (not frozen).
